Then and Now. [Copyright 1889 by James Gordon Bennett.] LONDON, March 23 .- [New York Herald Cable-Special to THE BEE. |- Why in the world strangers should take the trouble, as they often do, to sit in the house of commons hour after hour listening to dreary talk is a mystery to us who for our sins are obliged to remain. The air of the place is bad, the accommodation is none of the best, and the entertainment provided is about as poor as it can be. Yet you will see a crowd of persons waiting early to get in, bothering the members for orders which they are unable to give, and taking as much pains to succeed as if they were trying to gain admission to paradise. Meanwhile the prisoners who cannot get out never look up at the galleries without thinking how true it is that the world consists chiefly of fools.

I remember the days when Palmerston, Disraeli, Cobden, Bright and Giadstone were in their prime, and then it was not wonderful that strangers should delight in spending a night in the house of commons but the performers now are of a very different kind. Gladstone alone survives to show the house what fine old parliamentary manner was like. When he is gone the style will be a mere tradition of the past, and the standard of taste will be furnished by Sir William Harcourt, assisted at times by Dr. Tanner.

When exciting personalities are going on strangers, and members, too, manage to keep wide awake. Sir Richard Temple's displays of this kind have been numerous of late. The home rulers have been on the shoot with a vengeance. They fight everything and everybody in the order of the day. There was a maxim once laid down that it was the duty of the Irish members to make the work of the government impossible. Certainly the programme is being carried out. Anybody who watches the course of affairs in the house must feel his doubts daily growing whether that will be possible much longer to get any rational work done under the present system. When there exists a compact body of members in a legislature who are bent on paralyzing its movements, and who experts in all their operations to produce that result, what is to be done No rules that can be formed will suffice to meet every case that will arise. If the presiding officer throws himself too often or too decidedly against the obstructionists he will be bitterly assailed, in the house and out of it, and most likely he will after a time begin to think of asking for a place with the faction he has not the power to control. The present speaker of the house will never do that, but weaker

Never was the British parliament in euch danger as at the present moment. There have been several conflicts with the chair this week, and it cannot fairly be said that the chair has come out of them with increased dignity. These skirmishes have happened when the house was in committee, and when Mr. Courtnay was consequently presiding. While brisk fighting was going on, something of the kind was perhaps inevitable. Both Mr. Balfour and the attorney general were to be made to bite the dust this week, and yet both are alive and able to hit out pretty hard at their assailants. Hence there has been much wrath of feeling. When a man ought to die and will not it is exceedingly pritating. The attorney general's is the worst case. Harcourt came down to the house and an indictment was framed on the model of the letters of Junius. Evidently it was intended to rank in the future history with Burke's indictment of Warren Hastings. On these occasions Harcourt assumes a Johnsonian air of severity and sternness. His face is steeped in funeral gloom, his voice sinks, and his intonation is that of an afflicted brother at a camp meeting. In listening to him one is in doubt whether the proper thing is to laugh or to cry. On Friday the worthy Jumbo surpassed himself for an hour and a half. He imputed every kind of crime to the attorney general, while pretending to defend him from wicked men elsewhere, who had made the charges against him. It was a tolerably familiar rhetorical device and all went moderately well, although in a dull and half sleepy way, but it soon became evident that Junius Historicus Harcourt had somehow or other made a mess of it. He had been firing over the head of his intended victim, but the victim did not imitate his example. His shot went home, and what was worse, great Sir William perceptibly writhed under the fire. I heard strong Gladstonians admit that the attorney general had abso utely demolished Hercourt, and indeed this was pretty clearly the opinion of the house, as a majority of 80 for the government showed. Sir William deserves credit of having gained for the government the largest majority of the session. It is worth while for the conservaties to consider whether they will not offer him a retaining fee to se cure his services. He has been on so many sides, and abused them all in much the same strain, so that another change would not in any way disconcert him. Some very foolish things were done by members of the conservative party who are overweighed with common censure, Ailusions being made to the apparent belief of Lord Salisbury in the genuineness of the forged letters, several conservatives adopted that belief by cheering. They were lead by Sir Robert Fowler, who comes into the house in eccentric moods, ready at all times to say that 'stack is white if only Lord Salisbury issues orders to that effect. Of course he rose at once to the bait thrown over his head by the Paraellites. His grotesque cheer was he mediately taken up, and a bitter brawl grose. He was called to account. and poor old Fowler cut a rather sorry figure for a little white, until some one led him off to the smoking room. Mr. Parnell, who did not make his appearance till late, created a strong impression by plainly putting it to the conservatives whether they doubted that the letters were forgeries. Not one of them ventured to give utterance to such doubt; probably not a dozen really entertain it. Anyhow, the stupidity of a few reckless spirits can scarcely be taken as the opinion of the party, even though their folly apparently receives the sanction of Lord Salisbury. When all is said and done, there remains the question once put by the Duke of Weltington, "How is the queen's government to be carried on by those whose sole interest in parliament is in creating uproars and scenes?" This is the problem which ap pears most worthy of attention, and which will very soon have to be faced in earnest, unless the work of the government is to A MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT. an end.

The Australian Wheat Crop. San Francisco, March 23 .- Advices from Sydney appounce that the Australian wheat grop has fallen short of the estimated profuct for the season, and stocks are being firmly held owing to the probability of an imposition of a protective tariff at Melbourne, and the receipts to date are over 50,000 bags short. The total yield amounted to 62.000.000 bushels from an area of 2,000,000 acres, more than one-fifth of which is not worth reaping. The total surplus for exporting will be less than 2,000,000 bushels, as compared with 10,500,000 bushels for last season. Deer.
CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 23.—[Special Telegram to THE BEE.]—A singular accident resulting in the death of Erastus Dorwin Mecham, a Mormon who lived at Afton, Winta county, is just reported. He had started out with his gun for the purpose of obtaining meat for the family. After going three miles be found tracks where a herd of deer had recently passed, and followed until coming to a very steep descent, which caused him to discontinue his course in that direction. Seeing a tree a short distance below, he thought he might slide down, eatch by it and so proceed on his way. As he did so the snow gave way, he missed his footing and slid down the moustain about three hundred yards. In the intervening diatance there were occasional ledges of rock, and he landed in the ravine below. Three ribs were broken, and he also received internal injuries. West Virginia's Election Cases. WHEELING, W. Va., March 28 .- The United States district court, Judge Jackson presiding, has been engaged this week in trying parties indicted at the last term for violating the election laws. The cases excite a good deal of interest from the fact that with four exceptions the seventy odd indict ments are all against republicans, and the cases are being prosecuted by District Attorney Watts, who refused to resign at President Harrison's request, and who said publicly that his resignation was demanded that these indicted parties might not be convicted. The republicans claimed that the indictments were found for effect on the pending election contests. So far twenty-one cases have been disposed of, embracing alleged illegal voters, judges of election charged with knowingly receiving illegal votes, and parties accused of inducing the casting of illegal votes. Of these twentyone cases, one plead guilty, the jury failed to agree in one case, two indictments were dismissed bp the district attorney and seventeen were acquitted.

THE COUNT'S MISSION.

Herbert Bismarck's Visit to England Causes Another Flutter.

THE POLITICIANS ARE PUZZLED, And Berlin is Deluged With All

Sorts of Rumors, ALL MORE OR LESS IMPROBABLE,

The Real Object is to Prepare For the Coming of His Chief,

AND SETTLE COLONIAL MATTERS

The Chancellor's Reprimand of Dr. Knappe Freely Commented By the Press-Financial Situation.

Gossip From Berlin.

[Copyright 1889 by New York Associated Press.] Berlin, March 28.—Count Herbert Bismarck's visit to England, following so closely upon that of Sir Edward Malet, the British embassador, has given rise to all kinds of political speculations. Rumors that England is about to join the triple alliance may, however, be dismissed summarily, as may also the statements of the official press that the prince is merely making a holiday visit. The fact is that the visit has a double object, the most important part of which is the arrangement of details for the emperor's visit to England during the coming summer and to ascertain the wish of Queen Victoria as to whether the visit will be merely of a domestic nature, or shall assume state character.

During the past week Prince Bismarck has had a series of long interviews with the emperor, at which the matter of his majesty's visit was fully discussed. In the second place Count Herbert will take opportunity to discuss with Lord Salisbury col onial matters affecting the two nations. It is not improbable that some kind of an agreement will be arrived at embodying the prin ciples of the future colonial policy where British and German interests come in con tact. The Boursen Zeitung says that Count Herbert Bismarck will endeavor to bring the different colonial views of England and Germany into harmony.

The Post to-night announces that the Samoa conference will be postponed, probably until the beginning of May. This may be re garded as indicative of a desige to await the outcome of Count Herbert's mission.

Bismarck's reprimand of Dr. Knappe is much commented on. The Freisinnige Zeitung points out that Dr. Knappe was really driven into a state of furore consularis by Herbert Bismarck's dispatch of January s, instructing him to effect the necessary re prisals against the rebels, who, he said, by attacking had brought about a state of war The seizure by the police authorities of the Volks Zeitung has created a great sensation. and a legal decision upon the right of the lice to suppress the paper is awaited with considerable interest. Even the national press have not a word to say in defense of what is rated as a rash and imprudent pro ceeding on the part of the police, while the feelings of the liberal party are shown by paragraph in the Freisinnige Zeitung en titled, "Fearless and enduring," and advising steadfastness under the threatened reactionary measures of the government which look like a return to the time of King Frederick William.

The Cologne Gazette states that the gove ernment has resolved upon stricter measure for Germanizing the provinces, the dismiss ing of schoolmasters and tutors unable to teach the German language and replacing them partly by Alsatians and partly by Germans.

A scandal has been caused by the bringing of serious charges against Dr. Welez, a mem ber of the West Prussian diet, and formerly president of the permanent committee o that body. Dr. Welez is officially charged with the fraudulent appropriation of 104,000 marks, which had been voted by the committee for certain works. He will probably be compelled to resign. The emperor and empress yesterday vis ited the Dowager Empress Augusta on the occasion of the anniversary of the birth of Emperor William I, The emperor signed several army promotions. The inauguration of the Bismarck-Moltke monument has been fixed for March 31. The bourse during the week was depresse and prices were irregular, closing firmer owing to a better state of the Paris market A bourse committee is considering a pro posal to raise the limit of capital required of a company asking official quotations, from 1,000,000 to to 2,000,000 marks. It is not likely that the proposal will be adopted. Mark Vanzandt is having great success in

THE SAMOAN WHITE BOOK. Ex-Governor Grey, of New Zealand

States His Views. SAN FRANCISCO, Merch 23.—In the white book published in Berlin, respecting Samoan matters, Bismarck refers to the arrest of Galien, an Englishman, by the German consul at Apia, for suggesting that Mataafa should write to ex-Governor Grey, of New Zealand, as to the course the Samoans would pursue. Ex-Governor Gray, when asked re specting his views as to Samoa, said: "It would be far preferable to have each of these island groups with an independent government, settling all disputes among themselves by arbitration and guided, if possible, by a commission of foreign powers. It is clear that America is aiming at this line of policy, annexing none of the islands herself, and will do her utmost to preserve the peace of the Pacific. This is also certain to be the policy of the English possessions in these parts of the world. America will eventually become the leader of the Anglo-Saxon Pace, and will displace England from the position she now holds Many eyes in this part of the world are already being turned towards America as the power to preserve the interests of the Anglo-Saxon race in the Pacific, without herself annexing anything or allow ing foreigners to do so. It is clear that the power among the Auglo-Saxon race is shift. ing towards America, as the center of popu lation has already done. It is therefore un wise of England to peglect her interest in in such a time of emergency. The United States does not require a standing army, and consequently the whole resources of a people so circumstanced could be devoted solely to the maintenance of a navy, which would make the Anglo-Saxon race absolutely masters of the world."

WASHINGTON, March 23.-The weather and crop bulletin issued by the signal service for the week ending March 23, says that the weather has been favorable for growing crops and farm work throughout the Missis sippi valley and southern states. Recent rains in the wheat regions as far north as central Illinois, extending from Ohio to Kan sas, have doubtless improved the condition of the wheat crop. The weather conditions in the southwest, including the gulf states have enabled farmers in that section to al most complete planting corn. Not Settled Yet. WASHINGTON BUREAU THE OMAHA BEE, 513 FOURTEENTH STREET, WASHINGTON, D. C., March 23.

Ex-Senator Saunders, Congressman Connell and Mr. E. Rosewater called at the treasury department at 10 o'clock this morning by appointment with Secretary Windom, to present telegrams, letters and petitions in opposition to the site selected by Mr. Linton. Mr. Connell presented a petition from about one hundred and forty property owners and leading citizens in favor of the Sixteenth and Harney street site, and another petition in favor of Thirteenth and Harney streets. Mr. Saunders presented letters from Judge Dundy, William A. Paxton, Dr. George L. Miller, Judge Doane, and telegrams from John M. Thurston and several other prominent citizens, in favor of the Eighteenth and Farnam street corner. Mr. Rosewater also presented two petitions signed by seventy business men in favor of the Eighteenth and Farnam street site, together with a telegram in which the property owners of the Eighteenth and Farnam streets site guarantee to grade their lots to the Farnam street level without cost to the government, and assure the government that the damages by reason of the Douglas street grade would be waived, conditional on the construction of the postoffice on Eighteenth and Farnam streets. The secretary opened a number of telegrams in the presence of these gentlemen. Most of them were for the Eighteenth and Farnam site. A dispatch favoring the Planters house site was signed jointly by the editors of the Herald, World and Republican. The secretary stated tha under ordinary circumstances he was inclined to indorse the report of the special agent, but in view of the representations made with regard to the difference in the cost and the fact that the congressional delegation was divided he would withhold his final decision in the premises. Mr. Connell expressed his preference for the Lowe-Hoagland site on Sixteenth and Harney, but the secretary intimated that in view of Linton's report any site South of Farnam would not be considered available. Thereupon Mr. Connell stated that he would be willing to compromise on Eighteenth and Farnam. Secretary Windom stated that Senator Manderson had called upon him urging that prompt action be taken and requesting that the Linton selection be approved in order to expedite the construction of the building. Senator Saunders called his attention to the fact that the Planters bouse corner contemplated condemnation proceedings which would take several weeks, and if anything, would delay the building very much more than a decision in favor of a site whose owners are offering to deed the property. He also pointed out the fact that the Farnam site was 44x264 feet larger than the Planter's house site, owing to the fact that lots on Dodge street and Capitol avenue are only 120 feet deep with no alley, while on Farnam and Douglas the lots are 132 feet deep and the twenty foot alley make another report. MR. ROSEWATER INTERVIEWED. When Mr. Rosewater's attention was called to the protests of the editors of the Republican, World and Herald, he said: This is no surprise to me. It is the old combine that always opposes anything which THE BEE advocates, no matter how much i may be to the public interest. It is preposterous to talk about delay when we know that there is no supervising architect yet appointed, and when he is appointed it will take him weeks of time before he can view the ground and months before he can make plans for the building. The very best that can be done this year is to put in the foundation, and there is no possible chance of beginning the foundation before July or August, no matter what site is selected. I do not blame Mr. Hitchcock for being very anxious to have Linton's report approved. He expects to make $20,000 or $30,000 in the deal by selling one-quarter of that block to the government. If Agent Linton had made an unbiased report I should not have said one word, because so far as I am personally concerned, the Planter house site is within two and one-half blocks of THE BEE building, and within one block and a half of my residence. "But it is an open secret that months ago this location, the Planter house and Folsom property, was agreed on in this city, and I was advised by parties on the inside that this would be Mr. Linton's choice.

TEN DAYS BEFORE Linton had reported to the department, I telegraphed Governor Saunders and Mr. Connell from Omaha that the Folsom lots had been selected. Mr. Linton says he did' not mertion it to a soul until his report was delivered to the secretary. How did I know what he was going to report ten days before? am not a prophet nor the son of one, but' yet I told people in Omaha the day Mr. Linton started away what his report [would be.
